Joel Miller's 'The Still Life' for Sundance Festival

(Posted In Drama Film News Random Festival News USA and Canada )

Joel Miller wrote us today to let us know that his debut film, The Still Life, is going to make an appearance at Sundance.

Starring Jason Barry [Titanic], the film is about the redemption of an artist who struggles to regain himself and his identity after giving in to conventional success. This passionate, urban drama details the life of reclusive, alcoholic artist Julian Lamont [Barry] and his journey along a path of destructionism – a new genre of art that he accidentally develops during a night of self-loathing. Throughout the film, he is faced with a myriad of relationships that force him to take responsibility for his personal choices and to make a decision about the kind of artist that he wants to be. THE STILL LIFE co-stars Lamont's mean and bitter landlord, Mrs. Stratford [Terry Moore, Welcome Back Little Sheba], his girlfriend [Rachel Miner, Bully], and her boss, a respected art dealer [Don S. Davis, Stargate SG-1].

Joel has had an extensive working history in the music industry prior to launching his film career. In The Still Life you will see cameos the likes of Jonathan Davis from Korn. And with such exposure to the music industry is it no surprise that the soundtrack includes original music from artists like Dizzy Reed [GnR], Adrian Young [No Doubt], Dean Dinning [Toad the Wet Sprocket], Snake Sabo [Skid Row], Eddie Hedges [Blessid Union of Souls], Doug Carrion [The Descendents], Delaney Bramlett, Matthew Nelson, and Louise Post [Veruca Salt].
